REDWOOD AND THE NORTHWEST

Remarkable Career of Redwood City Lumberman who Became Pioneer at Tacoma, on Puget Sound.

[This week we devote the greater part of our space in this department to the following letter by Mr. W. H. Adams, which broadens the scope of our reminiscences of pioneer citizens.—Ed.]

ED. TIMES-GAZETTE:—This year, the Seattle exposition being in full operation, the Northwest country as a whole is brought prominently into the limelight and some interesting stories thereof are being told. While Seattle holds the center of the stage at present, its sister cities—Portland and Tacoma—are not sleeping on their prestige but are active and wideawake and come in for a just share of recognition. The vital question with these cities is, which one shall ultimately be the great metropolis of the Northwest? Our own story to-day concerns the city of Tacoma—for the reason that most of the land on which the city of Tacoma now stands, as well as the terminal site of the Northern Pacific railway and the great water-front now covered with freight and grain sheds and the extensive system of docks used by the ocean liners and ships engaged in the lumber and freight carrying trade of that port, and extending from Tacoma of to-day to the "oldtown"—the greater part of all that land was once owned by one of our townsmen, the late Charles Hanson of Redwood City.

As early as '56 it is told, Mr. Hanson, who had been engaged at Redwood City in the shipping business and transportation of wood, lumber and mill products to and from San Francisco and other localities, had become in what is known as "easy circumstances," yet having worked hard and made money he turned the trick on most early-day precedents by continuing to work hard and make more money. Withal he was a thoughtful man, agressive and resourceful, and his great opportunity finally came. Mr Hanson knew that the redwood timber belt of San Mateo county would soon be practically exhausted, so without waiting for that condition to materialize he planned in an entirely different direction. While still, as always, making Redwood City his home, he had become prominently identified with the business life and interests of San Francisco, and the time had come to expand; so that Mr. Hanson selected a suitable vessel and placing on it the machinery and other necessities for the construction and operation of a sawmill, sailed away for Puget Sound. At that time what is now the site of the city of Tacoma, as well as all the shore line to and beyond what is known as the "oldtown," was an unbroken forest. Here Mr. Hanson acquired land and established his mill, which has developed into one of the great concerns of the country, with a capacity of eighty million feet annually, and from whose own docks many deep water vessels take cargo-loads of timber products for all parts of the world. From this venture Charles Hanson grew wealthy.

As this mill business developed it became necessary to purchase and carry vast quantities of merchandise to supply the wants of the employes and to outfit the vessels engaged in the lumber trade, so that a general merchandise store with large ship chandlery department grew out of the demand and became a permanent adjunct to the mill company's business. Its own fleet carried lumber to San Francisco and brought back merchandise, which also thus found its way to and through the trade channels of the Northwest. With the advent of the Northern Pacific, however, much of this trade became lost to San Francisco.

But our story does not end here—a most interesting part, relating somewhat to present day conditions and as showing the country's development and the great increase in the value of land, remains to be told:

In the early '70s something happened along the Sound. The Northern Pacific Railway, in looking for a coast terminal, cast longing eyes on Charles Hanson's land. Jay Cooke the noted financier of those days, who had attained a national reputation as the exploiter of bond issues, was the promoter in this Northern Pacific land deal. To him Charles Hanson sold his lands, including the mill, at what was then considered a fair price, but which in the light of subsequent events proved to be a mere bagatelle. Just here is where the railroad showed its fine hand and began to give pointers on what this land and water frontage was worth with millions to back it. A subsidiary concern—the Tacoma Land Company—was organized and the great Northern Pacific terminal, its extensive system of docks, and what is now the business portion of the city of Tacoma, sprang up on what was the Charles Hanson land.

Even at this critical turning point Mr. Hanson's good fortune still prevailed, as his nerve did not desert him. Soon after his sale to Jay Cooke and the Northern Pacific it was found by the purchasers that they did not wish to continue the sawmill operations and they sold the mill back to Mr. Hanson, who also acquired forty acres along the adjacent hillslope, where a fine large spring occurred and which to this day furnishes the mill with water. Mr. Hanson also subdivided some of his land and realized a considerable amount from the venture. And to-day the Tacoma Mill property is worth vastly more than the whole site of the city of Tacoma in the early 70s.

In 1873 Mr. W. H. Hanson of Redwood City paid his first visit to Tacoma oldtown, site of the Hanson mill. At that time the place boasted of three houses. All the rest was an unbroken stretch of timber.

To bring our story to a close and by way of contrast show the Tacoma of to-day and its possibilities, we will here summarize from the July '09 issue of the National Geographic Magazine of Washington, D. C., a splendid publication, as follows:

The population of Tacoma is now about 105,000. . . . Its building record for 1907 and 1908 was slightly over $4,000,000 a year. . . . It has an ocean commerce of about $45,000,000 a year, about half of which is export trade. . . . The city is built along the slope and over the top of a fine wide plateau 300 to 350 feet high extending far to the north, west and south. The adjoining lands to the east are partly swamp and partly the flat bottom valley of the Puyallup river, which offer very large areas to be reclaimed for docks and railroad yards. It is expected that long basins will be excavated in the reclaimed lands, so that 70 miles of dockage may be developed, or more than the water front of New York city. . . . The ocean commerce finds its outlet on Puget Sound, one of the most remarkable water bodies in the world. It carries tidewater inland from the Pacific Ocean for 200 miles, with channels so deep from the Straits of Fuca to many of its head branches as to accommaccommodate the largest vessels.

It is an interesting fact that the Straits of Fuca are 800 feet deep at their mouth and 200 feet at the narrows to the east. . . . It is free from reefs and shoals, and the straits are wide open to the ocean, without bar or other obstructions to delay entrance or require pilotage.

Tacoma lies primarily nearer than Seattle to the great agricultural districts, so that the land haul to tidewater is less, especially by the new railroad line down the north branch of the Columbia river. . . . The new line affords a continuous down-grade route jointly for the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads. It cost $10,000,000.

Our story thus complete, it only remains to be said that the city of Tacoma itself is a fitting and the best monument to the memory of the late Charles Hanson, who of all men was the Tacoma City pioneer of pioneers. A.

HOT WORDS OVER FIRE HOSE

Frank Tannery Company Will Aid In Opening of Street—Will Refund Roosevelt Avenue Surplus.

All of the Trustees were present at the regular session of the City Council Monday evening, which was an unusually long one.

The monthly report of Town Clerk Plump showed that the receipts of his office had been $206, which had been paid over to the Treasurer.

Marshal Christ reported that he had collected $854.60 for water. There are 33 vacant houses, and $80 due on delinquent water bills.

Treasurer Towne reported a balance of $13141.49 in the water extension fund. In the general fund, the expenditures for the month had been $3337.44, leaving a balance on hand of $8134.80.

G. B. Yount presented a communication asking that a water main be laid to supply his new residence in Dingee Park. On motion of Trustee Hynding the request was granted and Street Superintendent Dickey was instructed to make the connection, laying a four-inch main on Duane street from Whipple avenue. During the discussion H. C. Tuchsin stated that several other parties in the district would want water within a very short time and suggested that a general system be laid. Mr. Tuchsin was informed that extensions would be made whenever asked for by builders.

A communication was presented from the Peninsula Promotion League asking that the Council pass an ordinance designed to prohibit ticket scalping. On motion of Hynding City Attorney Mansfield was instructed to prepare the necessary ordinance.

The question of the widening of Vera avenue was again brought up by a request from the property owners that the Council take some action. While a considerable time was spent in discussion nothing in the way of action was secured, the Trustees still insisting that the property owners must first agree among themselves upon a means of providing the required land for right-of-way.

C. E. Cumberson urged that something be done to preseve the roadway of Roosevelt avenue, which he declared was rapidly going to ruin. He said that not only was the roadway being cut up, but it had been overgrown with an unsightly growth of weeds. He thought the Council should either have used the balance in the improvement fund or returned it to the property owners. Chairman Merrill interposed an objection to criticism of the action of the Council, stating that the delay in the return of the money in the fund was due to a request of Mr. Cumberson and others interested in the street, who had failed to agree upon the manner of its use. Trustee Hynding stated that in company with the street superintendent he had inspected the street and that plans for oiling were being considered. At the suggestion of the chairman, the clerk and attorney were instructed to prepare lists for the refunding of the surplus in the fund, and the street superintendent was instructed to remove the objectionable weeds. This appeared to satisfy Mr. Cumberson and the matter ended.

Mr. Cumberson also called the attention of the Council to a violation of the terms of its right of way deed by the Southern Pacific Railway which was working detrimentally to the interests of the city. While it was understood that all trains should stop at this city, the obligation had been gradually slighted until now there were no less than six daily trains which passed the station without a noticable slackening of their speed. He hoped steps would be taken to put a stop to this neglect which is now threatening a hardship to the city. Chairman Merril stated that in a recent conversation with Mr. Ahern, that official had practically acknowledged the fault by stating that the railway company was considering the plan of adding one or more trains between this city and San Francisco. After a considerable discussion of the subject, City Attorney Mansfield was instructed to correspond with the railway officials and endeavor to secure a resumption of the former rule.

The awarding of the contract for fire hose, which had been referred to the fire committee at the last meeting, was the cause of a rather warm controversy between Trustees Hynding and Rice. When the matter was called up, Trustee Rice, chairman of the fire committee, stated that the committee was not prepared to report, himself and Trustee Brown favoring the bid of the Revere Rubber Co., while trustee Beeger favored the Bowers Rubber Co. of Oakland. After a plea in favor of the patronage of home industry, Trustee Hynding made a motion that the Bowers bid be accepted, which was seconded by Beeger. At this point Rice made

The vote polled by the citizens of San Francisco last Tuesday goes to show which way the wind blows in the metropolis. It clearly demonstrates that the people of that unhappy city are tired of the graft prosecution and want a new deal. Business has been retarded and capital has been shy to invest while the graft prosecution has been going on. The people are willing to forget the past and start anew, especially as nothing can be possibly gained by a continuance. No further convictions can be had and the voters have shown that the people desire the whole matter dropped.

objections to this method of taking the matter out of the hands of the committee, and some rather sharp exchanges of words followed. When Hynding's motion was put, Trustees Beeger and Hynding voted aye, Rice and Brown no, and Merrill declined to vote. Chairman Merrill then declared the motion lost. Trustee Rice then moved that the bid of the Revere Rubber Co., represented by Stafford Bros., be accepted, the motion being seconded by Brown. At this juncture Trustee Hynding arose and requested permission of the Chairman to retire, and this being granted he walked out of the Council room. Trustee Rice finally decided to withdraw his motion and the matter went back to the committee.

Surveyor Neuman presented a map of the proposed extension of Phelps street. As proposed, the extension would open Phelps street to its full width from Main to a junction with Webster at the intersection of Jefferson and Washington streets. The map was accepted and a number of blue prints ordered made for reference.

In answer to the request made at the last meeting, Henry Steinberger, manager of the Frank Tannery appeared to consult with the Council in reference to the opening of Chestnut street to deep water through the property of the Tannery Company. In reply to an inquiry as the the designs of the Council, Chairman Merrill stated that it was the wish to open the street to its full width in order to provide for the laying of a storm sewer and to accommodate the spur track to be built by the Railway Company for the accommodation of manufacturing enterprises. Mr. Steinberger stated that it was the desire of the Tannery management to cooperate in every possible way with the desires for city improvement, and that they were ready to make any reasonable concessions in aid of these projects. After several plans had deen discused, Mr. Steinberger invited the Trustees to visit the grounds with their engineer and after an inspection select a suitable route. This suggestion was accepted.

The Horstman Chemical works was given permission to connect with the sewer in Pine street.

The Clerk was instructed issue a call for bids for furnishing 300 tons of broken rock for use on the streets. It is expected this will furnish a supply for winter emergency repairs.

Street Superintendent Dickey presented an estimate of the cost of needed repairs on streets which threw a good sized wet blanket over the enthusiasm of the Trustees for temporary repair work. The plan proposed was to cover a width of 16 feet in the middle of the street with broken rock to a depth of two inches, this to be oiled and rolled. The streets which he proposed to treat in this manner were Mound, Arguello, Jefferson, Washington, and Rodgers, and the estimated cost of this together with the oiling of Roosevelt avenue, amounted to something over $7000. As none of the financiers of the Board could suggest a means of raising even an approximation of this sum for street work, the proposition was dropped.

Chairman Merrill prefented proof sheets of the new city map. Mr. Merrill was authorized to have printed a supply of the maps for the use of the city. The plate from which the printing is done is the property of the city.

Chairman Merrill called attention to the need of immediate improvement of Main street from the end of the present pavement to Holder street and suggested that this section be improved with the new reinforced concrete macadam. The plan will be considered at the next meeting.

The County Auditor's report of the assessed valuation of city property was presented and filed. The report shows the total valuation to be $1,401,020. An adjourned meeting will be held Monday evening for the purpose of fixing the city tax rate.

Bids for laying water pipe were submitted as follows: Corfiori & Co., 14½ cent per foot; C. A. Hess, 14½ cents; F. E. George, 14¼ cents. The contract was awarded to George.

The terms of the Library Trustees having expired, the members of the old board—P. P. Chamberlain, Robert Brown, Carl Plump, A. Kincaid and Henry W. Walker—were elected to succeed themselves.

Williams, the contractor of the Pope street bridge, crossing the San Francisquito creek near Menlo Park, sent a communication in which he stated that he had made an attempt to complete his contract in accordance with the board's directions but had been stopped by the supervisor of the Third township.

The chairman characterized the statement as false from beginning to end. He had not seen Williams for weeks. With the board's permission he directed the clerk to return William's communication without an answer.

A resolution, prepared by McEvoy, was adopted cancelling the former contract and directing the Clerk to advertise for bids to complete the work.

A communication was received from the State Board of Equalization stating that the assessment of the county would be increased and that the board would consider all objections at the rooms of the board of Supervisors of San Francisco on Thursday August 19th. The school day is from 9 a. m. to 3:45 p. m. with two recesses of five minutes each, and a noon period of 1¼ hours. Measured by periods of work each of the lady teachers gives instruction for six periods daily and has one or two periods of montior duty in the study hall. The principal hears five classes daily, and has charge of the study hall for two periods. He also keeps the record of attendance of the school. Mr. Carrington has two periods of musical instruction each Wednesday. to many pupils have begun work in Freehand drawing that instruction must be carried on for three periods daily to meet their needs. A larger room would permit all to be handled in two periods. Mr. Myers teaches for seven periods daily beside looking after the typewriting. He has one period daily in charge of the study hall. As will be seen from this record all the teachers have their time fully occupied. With the proper application pupils ought to do a superior quality of work this year. The end of the second week shows a greater enrollment than for the entire year of 1908-9. The enrollment in most of the classes is compulsory. In a few classes a choice is made between studies. It is designed to hold all pupils to one of three courses—Literary, Scientific or Commercial; and yet allow them some liberty of choice among subjects. Girls who mean to attend a higher school usually take the literary course, and boys the scientific under like conditions. Those preparing to become clerks, bookkeepers and stenographers take the commercial course. These courses meet the present needs of Redwood reasonably well. S. P. McCREA, Principal.

Judge Buck will pass sentence on Frank J. Resteguie next Monday. He was found guilty recently in the Superior Court by a jury for an assault committed on a chauffeur at Vista Grande. His attorney, W. H. Morrissey, will ask for a new trial on several grounds. He alleges that the jury receceived evidence other than admitted at the trial, that the verdict was arrived at by lot and not by deliberations of the jury, that the verdict is contrary to law, and that there was not sufficient evidence to support the verdict.

McCreery, the bigamist, will also appear for sentence at that time.

There is a watershed enough to fill it in one season and with a flow of water from the different springs affording an estimated volume of some 100,000 gallons daily it would seem that the Bostwick ranch would furnish water for a good bit of territory.

Mr. H. V. Bates, of San Jose, spent Sunday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Harris in this city. Part of the day was taken up by a trip in the launch "Ruth" which was very much enjoyed by all on board.

W. A. Barstow will put his 18 foot launch "Alone" into the water again tomorrow. He has installed a new six horsepower engine in the boat and after the machinery is limbered up will make the other boats in the creek look like a "ten cent piece with a hole in it" when it comes to speed.

Alfred Hofen, charged with an attempt to commit murder, still languishes in jail at San Jose. Last Saturday evening Emma, Annie and Viola Offermann were driven by Chas. Luscher in his automobile to San Jose. The party was overtaken at Milliken's Corners by Hofen who demanded that Emma Offermann return with him to Redwood City On her refusal he drew a gun and attempted to murder her. He was disarmed and the automobile party returned to this city. Miss Offermann had a warrant sworn to and Hofen was taken to San Jose Monday. He has retained James T. O'Keefe to defend him. The preliminary hearing is to take place on Monday. Nelson Paddock is also in jail at San Jose. He accompanied Hofen to Milliken's Corners and it is said furnished him with the pistol. Mr. Luscher says the case will be pushed to the bitter end. It is said the complaining witness is not inclined to prosecute the case.

Michael Stengel, an old pioneer of the Alpine district in this county, died at his home in Mayfield where he had lived for some time, Thursday following an illness of many months. He had been a resident for about 40 years.

He is survived by his wife and five children, Gustav, Lambert and Bernard Stengel, Mrs. A. Naude and Mrs. Lizzie Johnson. A brother, Bernard Stengel, lives in San Francisco and another brother, Andrew Stengel, has his home in the Alpine district.

Attraction Proves Winner.

It has been said by the greatest theatrical managers in the world, that the man, who could foretell the merits of a play, before it was produced, would be worth a million dollars a year to a producer. Some of the greatest failures, are those plays, that during rehearsel are conceded to be great. On the other hand a great many of the most successful plays were thought to be worthless, by manager and actor, at rehearsel. Take the great success, "The American" for instance, at the first rehearsel the manager, stage director, and actors in the cast were unanimous in condemning it. On the opening night it was different, before the curtain had been up five minutes "The American" had won the audience and as the play progressed it's popularity increased.

Walter Neuman and Bertha Foltz have secured this fine play as one of the feature bills in their repertoire of high class plays. The American contains nothing sensational,just tells a quiet simple story of a young man from Nevada, who has had his ups and downs in life, and, as he puts it, mostly downs.

All the characters help to make this beautiful play interesting from start to finish. Perhaps the most prominent of these are Abner Wescott of Nevada, and Lady Eastmore. Walter Neuman and Bertha Foltz have been very successful in these two parts and The American is one of their most successful plays.

The American will be the opening play, when Mr. Neuman and Miss Foltz appear here at the head of their excellent company at the Alhambra Theatr commencing Thurshambra theatre commencing Thursday August 26th.
